Tranquility Bay in Marathon Key--Go Right Now!

2:00 PM, August 03 2010 by Jennifer Scruby

At this point in the Miami summer, I send up the white flag and stop fighting the elements. It's all about a ponytail, SPF, a swimsuit, and floaty dress--and a weekend getaway that makes me glad that it's 98 degrees out.

Case in point: I just got back from Tranquility Bay in Marathon Key--the most adorable, lavishly landscaped hotel, which sits right on the beach. Ralph Lauren would love it. You can walk to a boat to go snorkeling on the reef or head off Jet Skiing--or, if you're too lazy for that, simply loll in the shade by the pool with the occasional small iguana or get a lovely spa treatment in your room. It's off-season in the Keys (read: lower hotel rates), and Marathon is only a two-hour drive from Miami. And the iguanas are shy, not-at-all-dangerous peaceniks. (On cold winter days, the hotel staff actually go around and cover them up with blankets.)
